

Social and Personal

The wedding of Miss Pauline E. Brown to Mr. Eugene A. Dietrich was celebrated last evening at 7 o'clock in St. John's German Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Rev. Dr. Paul Monzel, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Kirschmann, of Williamsport, Pa., the brother-in-law of the bride, performing the ceremony.

The church was tastefully decorated in palms, and the bridal party came in to the music of the bridal chorus from Lehengrin. The bride was attended by two maids of honor, Miss Augusta Brown, her sister, and Miss Anna Brown, of Baltimore, both wearing gowns of white silk and carrying a bouquet of white gladioli and carrying a bouquet of white gladioli and carrying a bouquet of white gladioli.

The bride was attired in white silk, trimmed with white lace. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mr. E. C. Kohler was best man; the ushers, Mr. C. H. Brown, Mr. E. D. Brown, Mr. Arthur Matern, Mr. George Matern, Jr., Mr. Edward Schmidt and Mr. Carl J. Blenner, of New York.

The church ceremony was succeeded by a reception at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Louis Brown, of No. 510 East Marshall Street. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Dietrich left for a Southern tour. They will return to make their home in Richmond, where both are extremely popular, and where Mr. Dietrich is associated with the widely known firm of Cordes, Mosby and Company.

Mr. Wallerstein Entertainers. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wallerstein, of No. 200 South Third Street, entertained very handsomely last evening at 8 o'clock in honor of Miss Beatrice J. Wallerstein, of this city, and Mr. Samuel S. Klein, of Chicago, whose wedding in the Jefferson Club parlors at 5:30 P. M., will be a society event of to-morrow's bridal party and the out-of-town guests who have assembled in Richmond to attend the celebration.

Table and parlor decorations of last evening were in red, red flowers and red shaded lamps, showing brightly against the winter wreaths and greenery that served as a reminder of the holiday season. German flags appeared everywhere, and the menu included German delicacies of all kinds.

The bride party, beside the two principals, included: Dr. E. N. Calhoun, the maid of honor for the wedding, Miss Beatrice Wallerstein, the bridesmaids, Miss Letitia Wallerstein, Miss Sadie Levy, Miss Rosa Greenlee, Miss Edna Greenlee, the best man, Mr. Nathan Klein; the ushers, Mr. Leo Ullman, Mr. Sam Wallerstein, Mr. William Emsheimer, of Wheeling, W. Va.; Mr. Ike and Mr. Dave Wallerstein, of Baltimore.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. J. of Chicago; Miss Raphael, of Norfolk; Mrs. J. Wallerstein and Mrs. Max Veller, of Baltimore.

Antiquarian Tea. The annual tea of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities was held in the association rooms from 2 to 5 P. M. yesterday.

Very pretty and artistic decorations were in smilax, red carnations and white roses. The rooms were pleasantly crowded with callers, who were received by Mrs. E. V. Valentine, Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, Mrs. George W. Bagby, Mrs. Charles W. Coleman, Mrs. Emma Read Ball, Mrs. J. Taylor Ellinger, Mrs. J. S. Wellford, Mrs. Archibald Anderson, Mrs. William T. Robins, Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, Mrs. John P. McGuire, Jr., Mrs. John B. Lightfoot, Mrs. William G. Starnard, Mrs. Joseph R. Anderson, Mrs. Thomas Bolling, Mrs. C. W. P. Brook, Mrs. Albert C. Bruce, Mrs. J. Alston Cabell, Mrs. J. Caskie Cabell, Mrs. Edward T. Crump, Mrs. R. Powell Dunn, Mrs. H. Theodore Ellison, Mrs. Virginia Hall, Mrs. W. S. Murray, Mrs. Charles T. O'Ferrall, Mrs. Stephen Putney, Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, Mrs. Henry Williams, Mrs. R. W. Watkins, Mrs. A. J. Montague and Mrs. S. H. Yonge.

The delightful refreshments were served during reception hours by a number of deft handmaids from among the younger society element of Richmond.

On New Year's Day Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Wilson entertained a number of their friends at dinner in their pretty country home, "Wildwood," near Sunny side, Va., in honor of the birthday of their sister, Mrs. C. W. Peckles.

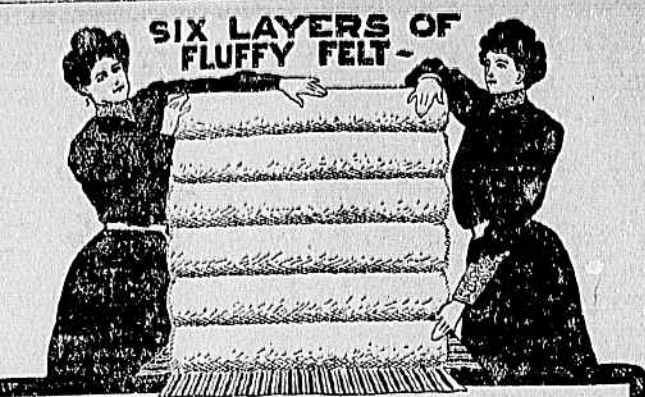

A perfect day, a delightful dinner, daintily served, a charming hostess—all taken together, made an occasion that will linger pleasantly in the memories of each of the fourteen guests present.

The many friends of Mr. Joseph Bruce, of this city, who has been in Arizona, for more than a year for his health, with most happy results, were assembled by a card bearing his or her name, to which was tied a sprig of mistletoe. Towards the conclusion of the dinner toasts

Covers were laid for about sixty plates, and a nine-course dinner was served. The places of the guests were assigned by a card bearing his or her name, to which was tied a sprig of mistletoe. Towards the conclusion of the dinner toasts

Lord Ullin's Daughter.

By T. CAMPBELL.

The poet Campbell, though he lived to be three score and ten, was too much of a dreamer to write anything like as much poetry as others who have lived as long as he, but, though remembered only by a few lyrics, his place is among the best. We have, already published the "Battle of Inverlochy" and the "Sally's Dream." The poem that we give to-day is equally celebrated. "Inanna Bird" means beautiful girl. "Bird" in an old Scotch word for girl. We have already noticed "The Bird of Kinross" and "The Bird of Kinross" in our last issue. Campbell's portrait and biographical sketch have already been published in this series.

"A chieftain to the Highland bound,
Cries, 'Bannan, do not tarry!
And I'll give thee a silver pound
To row us o'er the ferry.'"

"Now, who he ye would cross Lochgyle,
This dark and stormy water?"
"Oh! I'm the chief of Ullin's kins,
And this Lord Ullin's daughter."

"And last before her father's men
Three days we've fled together;
For, should he find us in the glen,
My blood would stain the heather."

"The horsemen hard behind us ride;
Should they our steps discover,
Then who will cheer my bonny bride
When they have slain her lover?"

Out spoke the hardy island wight.
"I'll go, my chief—I'm ready—
It is not for your silver bright;
But for your winsome lady."

"And by my word, the bonny bird
Shall never be parted from me;
So, though the waves are raging white,
I'll row you o'er the ferry."

By this the storm grew loud and deep,
The water-wraith was shrieking;
And in the scowl of heaven each face
Grew dark as they were speaking.

But still as wilder blew the wind,
And as the night grew drear,
Down the glen rode armed men,
Their trampling sounded near.

"Oh! haste thee, haste!" the lady cries.
"Though tempests round us gather:
I'll meet the raging of the skies,
But not an angry father."

The boat has left a stormy land.
A stormy sea before her,
When, oh! too strong for human hand,
The tempest gathered o'er her.

And still they rowed amidst the roar
Of waters fast prevailing;
Lord Ullin reached that fatal shore,
His wrath was changed to wailing.

For sore dismayed through storm and shade,
His child he did discover;
One lovely hand she stretched for aid,
And one was round her lover.

"Come back! Come back!" he cried in grief,
"Across this stormy water;
And I'll forgive your Highland chief,
My daughter!—oh! my daughter!"

"Twas vain: the loud waves dashed the shore,
Return or aid preventing;
The waters wild went o'er his child,
And he was left lamenting."

This series began in the Times-Dispatch Sunday Oct. 11, 1903. One is published each day.

NEW THINGS SEEN
IN THE SHOPS
LADIES' DRESSING SACK.

No. 6107—Dainty simplicity characterizes this dressing sack of French flannel, trimmed with plain colored bands. The round collar and cuffs are both attractive features, as many women can wear a round collar who would never think of using the square shape. The dressing sack is tucked in pointed yoke effect in the front, fitted by shoulder and under-arm seams, and may be worn with or without the belt.

Twine holders in the form of gentlemen's hats are an improvement upon the unpretentiousness of the twine cases. These are in imitation leather, with holes through which the twine can be drawn. A little line, which is characteristic of hat boxes, serves in the imitation as a handle, by which a holder may be suspended.

Some rather franky but popular belt buckles represent animal heads. They are from two to three inches in diameter, and are encased upon silver or a cheaper material. They represent somewhat natural looking cats, dogs, etc., executed in color.

Chenille trimmings would seem to be growing in favor. If one can judge by the number of innovations appearing in the line, something which the busy women may have overlooked in this line is chenille embroidery worked on net.

THE SONG OF THE WHEAT.
(Elmer Brown Mason, in The Reader Magazine for December.)
"Brothers, Brothers, 'tis dark down here—
Brothers, Brothers, O feed the sun."
Whispers the wheat beneath our feet,
In the glow of life begun.
"Brothers, Brothers, the light is good—
Brothers, Brothers, my sap runs strong."
Murmurs each blade by the warm wind waves.
In an endless whispering song.
"Brothers, Brothers, I'm fair and strong—
Brothers, Brothers, I'm crowned with gold."
Whispers the wheat with its task complete,
And the tale of its labors told.
"Brothers, Brothers, the earth was dark;
Brothers, Brothers, the world is fair—
But struggled on and we gained a crown.
Which each of us may wear."

SOCIAL CONVERSATION.

Too often a reception degenerates into a "crush," where the guests are so packed together that they are unable to converse. The reception is for conversation, and yet no one can properly converse, if he is so packed together that he is unable to converse. The reception is for conversation, and yet no one can properly converse, if he is so packed together that he is unable to converse.

A JAPANESE DEN.

Japanese dens are often abominations to be avoided, but a friend has just found up such a pretty smoking room for her own use, that I am tempted to give you my ideas regarding Oriental interiors in American homes. It was a small, upstairs room, measuring about 10 by 11 feet, with a dado of wood, three feet high. This was painted black—the flat black of tankard—to which first a sort of Japanese design was painted, and then, who cut weird dragons and other Oriental designs with sharp pen knives from heavy, soft, brown parchment—was built in and painted black; wide, low seats were built in around all available wall space in cushions of a heavy serge in dull blue. The portiere was a triumph of ingenuity. It was of unbleached cotton cloth lined with dull blue denim. In the center, that is, just toward the entrance, was a panel of rice paper, gayly adorned, and around this a border of Japanese pattern, painted on and washed until dry to make them lie smooth. The rug was of Japanese jute in ivory and old blue; the chairs were homemade, of pine, shaped black of Flemish oak, and the little table, which held the smoking set, was of bamboo covered with a cloth of cotton patterned in blue and white.

BRIDE MEASURING DAY.

Measuring brides for legacies is the remarkable ceremony which annually takes place in St. Cyrus, a quaint little village in Kincardineshire, Scotland, on the brink of the German Ocean, and above is a picture of the primitive measuring machine, which has decided the fortunes of scores of matrimonial candidates.

More than fifty years ago a native of the village, who had been paymaster-general of the Indian army, bequeathed a sum of money, the interest of which was for all time coming to be disbursed in five equal parts every year. One part was for the purchase of meat for the poor, while the remainder was set aside to be divided among each year's four conspicuous brides—the oldest, the youngest, the tallest and the shortest.

The administration of the fund is in the hands of the parish minister, and the jealousies which arise among the competitors for this legacy are such as to be a source of amusement to the villagers.

For there is a rivalry for these legacies, which rarely exceeds $100 each, but that is quite an important sum in so remote and simple a village. All St. Cyrus turns out on bridge day, measuring day, and the occasion is made a holiday.
